1. No later than August 6, 2015, defendants shall submit briefs explaining why certain foreign data privacy or bank secrecy laws prohibit disclosure of the documents sought by plaintiff. In the absence of an agreement among the parties to the contrary, the briefs shall address the laws of Japan, France and South Korea; one brief shall be submitted with respect to the laws of each of these countries on behalf of all defendants. Plaintiff shall serve and file his

If, for example, one brief is 4,000 words long, the parties cannot add 1,000 words to one of their other briefs.

c. Each brief shall include certification that, according to the word count function of the the brief complies with the word limit.
